

Latest AI News Summary (May 16, 2026):

1. "The haves and have nots of the AI gold rush" - This article examines the growing divide between AI companies that have access to massive resources and those that don't, highlighting how funding and infrastructure disparities are shaping the industry.
2. "Research repository ArXiv will ban authors for a year if they let AI do all the work" - ArXiv, a major academic preprint server, has announced strict new policies against AI-generated research papers, implementing one-year bans for authors who submit work entirely created by AI without proper human oversight.
3. "OpenAI co-founder Greg Brockman reportedly takes charge of product strategy" - Greg Brockman, OpenAI's president and co-founder, has taken on increased responsibility for the company's product direction, signaling potential shifts in their development priorities.

Additional notable AI stories:

- Osaurus brings both local and cloud AI models to Mac computers
- Snowflake CEO discusses why the company is no longer just a data warehouse
- Musk's xAI is running nearly 50 gas turbines unchecked at its Mississippi data center